Hello Briam,

Here, it is. Take care.

My name is Glauce Biagio. I met Brian at a charity event, Crisis at Christmas in December 2005 in London. Brian noticed that I spoke Portuguese and asked me if I would be able to help out Portuguese-speaking students at the OLCVS, since he said there were difficulties with providing the students with a rounded education due to language difficulties. I agreed to work at the OLCVS because I could see Brian's passion for, and commitment to, the job and for helping the students.

I started working at the OLCVS in January 2006 and stayed until June 2006. I want to say that in all those months, I was made to feel welcome, to feel part of the team, and that my work (and myself) was valued. At all times, Brian acted in a professional way with me. I noticed a lot of growth amongst all the students, not just the Portuguese-speaking ones.

I was impressed with Brian's professional attitude to the job, his staff and the students.

Yours sincerely,

Glauce Biagio
